KRUGER PACKAGING E'TOWN "FIRST LOOK" EVENT TURNS HEADS

Elizabethtown Mayor Jeff Gregory and members of the media visited the T. J. Patterson Industrial Park recently to get an exclusive "first look" at the interior of the new Kruger Packaging E'town Plant. Construction on the cutting-edge facility is complete and the plant is currently in the start-up phase.

"The City of Elizabethtown is beyond excited to welcome Kruger Packaging to our Industrial Park," said Mayor Gregory. "Kruger checks all the "boxes" we are looking for when recruiting quality industry. He added, "We want to congratulate the Kruger family for their newest investment and thank them for placing their trust in Elizabethtown."

The $114 million state-of-the-art is now manufacturing environmentally sustainable corrugated boxes, protecting products in the box while also protecting the planet.

"We want to congratulate the Kruger family for their newest investment and thank them for placing their trust in Elizabethtown."

– Elizabethtown Mayor Jeff Gregory

MEET THE TEAM: JADA PORTER

Dry-End Stacker Operator Jada Porter is new to Kruger Packaging and the manufacturing industry, but don't let that fool you. Jada is a dedicated and determined team member whose bright smile and hard work help deliver sustainable packaging solutions for our business partners. She was also among our first cohort of team members getting complementary, on-the-job training and education from Elizabethtown Community & Technical College (ECTC).

HAPPY HOLIDAYS!

For the 2nd year in a row, Kruger Packaging E'town was proud to be an official "factory" for Quicksie 98.3's Toy Factory Drive. This year, Kruger Packaging elves donated $2,000+ in gifts for Kentucky children in-need – more than double the amount of 2021.
